Capt. W.R. deLyre Writes Of Manila Under Date, Aug.4

Ruin Left By Japs Told; Filipinos Friendly

An interesting letter received from Capt. Wolf R. de Lyre of 4545 Santa Monica Ave., by Heber Hartvigsen gives a good picture of living conditions in Manila:

Manila, P. I.
4 August, 1945

Dear Heber:

Looks like I've owed you a letter for a long time but I've been busy as the deuce for by the new address you can see I'm not in New Guinea any more, thank God. Eighteen months and 10 days of my life in that hell hole called Oro Bay. What a relief to be out of it. Yes, I can now tell you where I was. You may have a hard time finding the place on the map but it's about 20 miles from Bunn. I have also been at Milne Bay, Finschhafer and Hollandia. Do these names sound familiar at all? To us they are as common as the names of streets back home.

Manila is quite a place. Before the war it must have been a very beautiful place. However, the Japs bomb shellings really raised cane here and there are very few undamaged buildings.

Things are fairly quiet here now and we seldom hear anything any more. When I first came here we would hear machine guns and artillery fire but guess that pocket of Japs is about cleaned out. Have seen some Japs and all I can say is they are a sad looking bunch.

The war news sounds good and it can't end any too soon to suit me. Only I hope they bomb and blast the hell out of the Japs before they allow them to surrender. If you could see and hear what they have done to the Filipinos here, the abuse, torture, rape and murder, you would want

Softball Team Of Boys Plays Three Games To Date

The Kiwanis-Sponsored boys softball team has played three games since their organization about a month ago.

Monday they clashed with Cabrillo grade school boys and put up a good game though several of the Ocean Beach regulars were not on hand. "When our boys get a few more games under their belts they will no doubt be able to beat any team in their class," Coach J. M. Danneirk Jr. declared this week. "We are suffering from a bad lack of players. There will be practice Saturday at 9:30 a. m. at the Ocean Beach school ground. All boys who are interested are asked to be on hand and we will give you a workout," he said.

In the previous game, played with Bayview Terrace lads Thursday, Aug. 16, the Ocean Beach boys were again up against a much older team and lost the game. Lack of experience also handicapped the losing team, reports the coach.

Lose First To Linda Vista

In the first played by the Ocean Beach team they lost to Linda Vista by a lop-sided score, the game being Monday evening, Aug. 13, at the Cabrillo playground. Reporting on the game, the local lads stated that they "made a good showing for the first game and for not having played under lights before."

"Our only scores," they said "were two runs in our half of the fourth inning after Norman Webbernhorst singled and Clyde Flynn lined down the left field foul line for a home run."

Flynn and Timmy Coakley saw duty on the mound and Webbernhorst behind the plate. Remainder of the Ocean Beach lineup included Sutherland rf, Coyle 2b, Sulek and Flickenger lf, Dolan ss, Hebert cf, Hegerle 3b, Hable 1b, and Boeh sf.

Corp Carl J. Dibble, son of Mrs. D. C. Garver of 5067 Newport Ave. is now stationed in Puerto Rico with the Caribbean division of the Air Transport Command.

Is There Interest In Servicemen To Learn Jap Lingo

Fred Edwards of Ocean Beach, local authority on the Japanese language which he picked up while a resident of Nippon for several years, wonders if there is sufficient interest here among relatives of Ocean Beach servicemen soon to be on duty in the American army of occupation in Japan in the matter of providing these servicemen with instruction in the more commonly used words and phrases of the Jap language. Commenting on the proposal he said this week:

"Our boys going ashore would appreciate having a working knowledge of the Japanese language. Many relatives and friends of the boys over there live here in Ocean Beach and the Ocean Beach News, can and will run a colmun in its paper devoted to the teaching of the language, if we get enough requests for this service. These lessons will deal with every day conversation and the idea is to clip the column out and mail it to the serviceman. If you are interested kindly fill in the coupon and mail to the Ocean Beach News, 1922, Bacon St."

I am interested in such column.

Board Sets Sept. 10 For Reopening Of Public Schools

Dana Junior High To Run Two Shifts At Start

San Diego public schools are to open for the new school year of 1945-1946 on Monday, September 10, the city board of education office announced this week. Teachers are to report for duty on the Tuesday before, Sept. 4.

Principal change in the public schools of the Ocean Beach area will be at Dana Junior high school and Point Loma high school because of the shifting of all the ninth grade students, who have previously been taken care of at Point Loma high school, to the Junior High. Construction of a $300,000 annex to the Junior High is expected to reduce the congestion at both schools.

Until the new annex is completed, however, there will be so much congestion at the Junior High that two shifts will be necessary, Principal Clarence Swenson announced this week. The temporary plan is for the eighth and ninth grade students to be in school for the four hours of 8 a. m. to 12 noon, and for the seventh grade students to be in school from 12:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. Most of these students accordingly will be home for the lunch hour, he said.

Swenson estimated the Junior High enrollment may go as high as 1200 students. The peak last school year was 960, he said.

Shortage of material and labor has changed the previous plan to have the new annex ready for use at the beginning of the school year, Swenson stated, making necessary the temporary double-shift arrangements. The shell of the new building has been completed, however, the concrete work finished and the plasterers have started their part of the construction this week, he said. The shops part of the new structure will be ready by the opening date of the school, the contractors have assured him.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shoemaker of 2022 Abbott St. were on a week-end visit with Mrs. Shoemaker's mother in Pasadena. Capt. Burritt S. Mills accompanied them to Pasadena and also was a guest at the mother's home. The Shoemakers then took him to the air port at Burbank, whence he flew east to Colorado and Oklahoma preparatory to his trip overseas. During his last stay in Ocean Beach he made his home with the Shoemakers.

Ocean Beach Celebrates USO Second Anniversary

Street dancing, which attracted a large crowd of servicemen and civilians, climaxed the second anniversary celebration of the Ocean Beach USO last Sunday night. Earlier, a floor show was presented by the Lucille Iverson USO entertainment unit. Directed by the USO Citizens' committee of which Lloyd Greeson is chairman, the club is meeting a definite need. An attendance of more than 83,000 at the local USO was recorded in the two years.

Police Recover Five Stolen Cars Here

Ocean Beach police were almost in the wholesale stolen car recovery business this week. They recovered in Ocean Beach five cars that had been stolen in various others parts of the city, four of them in the one day of Tuesday and the fifth Thursday.

Evidently the gas restrictions removal has a tendency to increase the temptations to "borrow" other folks autos.

The new medical building at 4815 Newport Ave., is now occupied by Drs. Harold M. Rogallo and Marvin R. Eby, physicians and surgeons. Dr. Rogallo, formerly practiced in Long Beach, Calif. Mrs. Gladys V. Rogallo is a R. N. and will assist her husband

MRS. LIDA KILLOUGH SELLS JOSEPHINE'S BEAUTY SHOP TO MRS. MARGARET GALE

Mrs. Lida Killough of 4916 Del Monte Ave. this week sold Josephine's Beauty Shop at 4811 Newport Ave. to Mrs. Margaret Gale of 3605 Lotus St. Mrs. Killough, whose husband, Lowell M. Killough, has been missing in action in the Pacific theatre since June 16, expects to take a long rest from the work. She had conducted the shop for seven years.

Mrs. Gale announces that she will open the shop earlier in the moring and also every week day. The opening hour will be 9 a.m. instead of 9:30. Previously the shop had been closed on Wednesday, but beginning next week it will also be open on that day.

PUBLISHING UNEMPLOYMENT FORECASTS

Propaganda publicity played an important part in the war, but it was judicious carefully considered propaganda that helped the war effort. The other kind, of course, hampered the war effort.

Similarly in peace time there is right and wrong publicity, and already much of the latter has been broadcast by press and radio. Proper publicity greatly helps the post-war efforts to bring about rapid reconversion from war plant employment to peace time employment in the industries.

Examples of the wrong kind of publicity are the numerous big headline stores that have been used in the press and on the radio the past few days playing up forecasts that millions will be out work by November and more millions by next spring. Many of these stories emanate from various government agencies. If there is one thing that these agencies should not do it is to give out half-baked sensational statements and figures on anticipated unemployment, and the press and radio, on their part, also make a serious mistake to play up such stories. They are the kind that promote instead of combat depression.

Examples of the kind of publicity that helps is one that appeared in the daily press dispatch from New York Monday stating that "54 million jobs are predicted in 1946. Civilian goods production will aggregate $80 billions a year by September 1946, the Committee for Economic Development predicted tonight. The C. E. D. declared that some of the present unemployment forecasts verge on the hysterical. A two-year study of statistics obtained from 1406 manufacturing firms and 158 trade associations, numbering 20,000 members, indicates strongly that within one year after full resumption of peace time production the value of U. S. industrial output will top by 41.6 percent the 1939 aggregate of $56,843,000,000."

Never was it more important than right now to encourage rather than discourage industries and workers in this country.

U.S.O. Anniversary Program Attracts 2000 Here Sunday

The Ocean Beach USO observed its second anniversary Sunday with an afternoon and evening program that attracted an estimated 2000 visitors, including civilians who joined with servicemen and women in celebrating the event.

Highlights were a scintillating floor show presented by Lucille Iverson's USO entertainment unit, and street dancing to the music of the 36th Army Corps swing band. Refreshments, consisting of the anniversary cake and punch, were served during the evening.

Lloyd Greeson, chairman of the Ocean Beach USO Citizens committee, gave a welcoming address at the evening meeting, and reviewed the activities of the local USO unit during the two years. Total attendance of service folk during that period he said was 83,132, of whom 48,697 visited the club during the past year. Other figures cited for the 1944-45 period were Sunday buffet suppers served, 3,333; swimming facilities, including free trunks and towels, enjoyed by 1,335, and 13,786 pieces of USO stationery provided. Fishing equipment was available to servicemen, and many were accommodated with overnight housing.

Two weddings for service folk were sponsored by the committee, and several hundred "talk a message home" recordings were made.

Sheridan Hegland, executive director of San Diego USO Council, represented George A. Scott, chairman, who was unable to attend because of other commitments.

Arrangements for the celebration were supervised by Mrs. Lloyd Greeson, who was aided by Mrs. Kettie Johnson, flowers; Mrs. Virginia Blankenship, decorations, and Mrs. Esther Milton, refreshments.

NEW SHOW WINDOWS AND REDECORATING COMPLETED AT BELLE BEAUTY SALON

New show windows have been added and the entire shop has been redecorated at the Belle Beauty Salon, 4989 Voltaire St., and a complete line of cosmetics has been added to the business, the proprietors announced this week.

Mrs. Imogene Wallace of 4965 Santa Monica Ave. returned Tuesday from a six weeks visit with her husband's parents in Memphis, Tenn., and is resuming her work at the Kraft Drug Store. Her husband, Ralph Wallace MM 2/c, who returned June 29 from Pacific overseas duty, is in a Naval hospital at Shoemaker, Calif., for a physical check-up.

Petitions On War Memorial For San Diego Circulating

Circulation of petitions for a $3,000,000 memorial for the entire city, proposed to be constructed in down town San Diego, was started in Ocean Beach this week. Mrs. Al McConnell, wife of the paymaster of the Osmond K. Ingram Ship No. 1774, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of San Diego was at work on the campaign for petition signatures this week.

The petitions ask the county supervisors for a special election for the "purpose of establishing a Memorial district within the limits of the city of San Diego. The petitions must be signed by 8 percent of the registered voters who voted in the last gubernatorial election, and the last date set for signing them is Sept. 10, 1945."

Paymaster McConnell states that "this is the first time that San Diego has had an opportunity to obtain a memorial that will not only be a credit to San Diego, but will serve as a memorial tribute to our honored dead of all wars."

A recent law enacted by the state legislature, AB 44, did away with the provisions that prevented the San Diego War Memorial Building Conference committee from taking this action any earlier.

This bill was carefully steered through the assembly with the aid and assistance of San Diego legislators, to enable the veterans of San Diego to start definite plans for the post war erection of a war memorial building.

The petitions request the county board of supervisors to call a special election sometime in November of this year to elect five members of the board of directors of the War Memorial Building committee.

Legion Auxiliary Installs Officers At Aug. 16 Meet

Fold Named Head Of Post To Succeed Capt. Mills

Clyde A. Wright Post American Legion Auxiliary No. 433 installed officers at their August meeting, held Thursday evening Aug. 16, at the Woman's clubhouse. Those inducted into office for the ensuing term are:

President, Anna Neujahr; first vice president, Katherine Riggs; second vice president, Cherie Strauss; secretary-treasurer, Veda Moss; chaplain, Mary Fold; historian, Margaret Brown; executive woman, Eudavilla Wright.

Drill team from Legion Post Auxiliary No. 6 of downtown San Diego, consisting of eight ladies, officiated at the installation and Mildred Granger was the installing officer. The drill team ladies were garbed in black formals and the new officers were attired in pastel formals, making an impressive intermingling of pastels and blacks particularly in view of the white gardenia corsages worn by all of these two groups.

Change In Post Officers

While the Auxiliary was in session, the Legion post also held a brief business session, at which Samuel G. Fold, the first vice commander, was advanced to the office of commander, succeeding Capt. Burritt S. Mills, who resigned because of leaving the city. In the change of officers, Marc Strauss was advanced to first vice commander and Wm. Britton of Ocean Beach, was chosen second vice commander.

A donation of $10 was voted to the Indoor Sports club for their new building project, and plans were discussed for carrying on the 1945-46 membership drive. Strauss is chairman of the committee to push the campaign. A goal has been set for 75 members for the post.

Following the business session the Legionnaires met with the Auxiliary for the installation.

Music for the occasion was furnished on the piano and accordion by Grace Chadwick and the evening closed with refreshments being served to both the Post and Auxiliary and with the congratulations extended to the new and the retiring officers. Retiring as Auxiliary president was Mrs. Myrtle Orrick.

City Finds 145 Boys Under 10 In 1944 Delinquent

Officer Dibbs Tells Kiwanis To Teach Games To Lads

One hundred forty-five boys of less than 10 years of age were before the San Diego Juvenile Bureau for law violation during the past year, Sgt. Chas. Dibbs of the city police juvenile department told the local Kiwanis club at the meeting here Tuesday evening, speaking on "Juvenile Delinquency in San Diego and How to Remedy It." According to these records no longer are all the delinquents boys of teen age. In these war years many of the younger boys have got into trouble with the law, he said.

While placing the blame in large measure on the parents of these boys, Sgt. Dibbs also placed blame on society in general and indicated that the situation calls for early action, particularly in view of the prospects for a post-war crime wave among the teen-age lads who will lose their jobs to war veterans. Because of the spendthrift ways of most of these boys the criminally inclined among them are going to resort to crime when their jobs-source of revenue has been stopped. Far too many of them have utterly failed to save any of their high wages, he declared.

He reported on specific cases of delinquency that were directly due to failure of parents to retain the confidence of their sons. Too many parents set their sons examples in lying and dishonesty to say nothing about other wrongdoing so it isn't any wonder that an errant son will regard his parents as the very last persons to go to for help when they get into a "jam."

Among the remedies Dibbs suggested, he particularly emphasized the need for adults to teach their youngsters while yet in the lower grades the numerous games they themselves had played in their youth. Most lads now do not even know how to play a half dozen games let alone the dozens of games that their dads played in the previous youth generation.

In other words keep the play time of the small lads under 10 filled with a lot of games that they can play in both small and large groups and we can forget most of our worries that our lads are liable to go astray, he indicated.

E. W. Montgomery, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Guests at the meeting were Kiwanians Bruce Weston of La Jolla and Eulberg of Brawley and C. B. Green, a chief specialist stationed at the local Naval Training station, a guest of Rev. James Roberts.

For next week's meeting, the program chairman, Forest Whedon, has arranged for a debate by four of the Kiwanians on the question, "Shall the U. S. Institute a Program of Compulsory Military Training after the War."

Only Routine Clean Up At Bus Terminal

Burning and removal of the brush on the San Diego Electric Railway Company's property at the corner of Sunset Cliffs Blvd. and Orchard Ave. does not mean the construction of a new terminal building officials of the firm informed The News for announcement this week. Several workmen had been busy on the vacant lots burning the brush and removing the other debris.

The work done is "just a routine cleaning," an official representative of the company stated.

Asked about any plans for a new bus terminal building, he said that "we have backed off from that project for the time being because of objections that had been raised by nearby residents. So there is nothing in prospect at the time," he said.

Jean Rittenhouse, Ocean Beach artist, was in the limelight in San Diego this week. Under a large picture of her drawing the portrait of a girl, Miss Rittenhouse was captioned as one of the attractions at the San Diego Art Mart which closes a 3-day session today.

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

By COL. ROBERT L. SCOTT

WNU Features.

CHAPTER XII: Scott goes on so strafing missions with his "Old Exterminator," as he has now nicknamed his Kittyhawk, and cuts a Jap battalion to bits.

CHAPTER XIII: The AVG are told they are to be inducted into the U. S. army. Scott returns to India and continues his single ship raids on the Japs. He is now known back in the States as "the one man air force."

CHAPTER XIV: Col. Haynes is moved to China to head the bomber command under Gen. Chennault and Scott is left alone as commanding officer of the Ferry Command. Scott is ordered to report to Gen. Chennault in Kunming, China, as commanding officer of the 23rd Fighter Group.

CHAPTER XV: Col. Scott is ordered to proceed to the Kweilin area to take charge of fighter operations.

CHAPTER XVI: He intercepts a flight of Jap planes and downs a bomber. His tank is empty but he succeeds in landing it dry.

Just when the full moon in the clear sky would begin to light the ground like daylight, the telephone would start ringing, the Chinese interpreters would begin to stick the little flags into the Map, and we'd know that the Jap was on the way. We'd be just about to sit down to supper after a hard day's work on the alert. We'd leave the rice and fish and squash, amid the houseboys' calls of "Jin-bao—" (air raid), and we'd rush for our planes that had been assigned to night duty. Sometimes the attack was a harassing one only, and we'd return without seeing them and go wearily back in the moonlight to the hostel, get some tea and a cookie, and crawl in the bed.

Just about the time the head hit the pillow and the body felt a little comfortable the alert would go again. I'd hear the tinkle of a small dinner bell and the plaintive voice of one of the houseboys—"Jin-bao, Jin-bao—please get up, master—Jin-bao." Off we'd go again and into the sky. Sometimes the Jap would feint two or three times to make us use valuable gasoline. Sometimes he'd circle Hengyang by fifty miles and then go back to Hankow. We'd spend the night between the hostel and the alert shack; but after all, as we used to say, you weren't supposed to be comfortable in a war, and we were no exception.

Sometimes, though, the Jap didn't feint.

General Chennault got us to pick the best and most experienced pilots for the night interception missions. We'd use two to four ships and place them at different altitudes over the field, and wait for the Jap in the light of the moon, with our lights out. On this particular night Johnny Alison was at 13,000 feet, and a thousand feet lower we had Ajax Baumler. I'll tell you about Johnny now, but we'll take up more on Ajax later—for this was mostly Johnny's fight.

Alison was a superior airman, fighter pilot, and officer, and was the ideal combat leader. A Florida boy, he knew the Allison engine well enough to have designed it. He knew the P-40's better than anyone I have ever seen, for he had instructed the British in their use in the United Kingdom and then had gone over to show the Russians how to fly and repair them near Moscow. Tonight he was about to carve his name with his six fifty-calibre guns in such a manner that few of us would ever forget it, and certainly no Chinese in the city of Hengyang would ever forget the night.

We got our four ships into the air at staggered altitudes. We heard the radio reports from Richardson giving the latest positions of the Japs. Reported over Changsha. Then North of the field. Then all was silent while we waited. In our positions over the field we placed ourselves down-moon—that is, where the bombers would have to fly between us and the moon and thus silhouette themselves against the full orange light.

Then I saw the five bombers against the moon. They were at 13,000 feet. I know I swore because they were below me, and I could imagine the cursing of every one of the others who were at the wrong altitude, for we could not change altitude until the first attack. But they were at Johnny's height, and I listened for him to say that he saw them. Down the field they told us later that you could hear the moan of one Allison engine as a P-40 moved in for the attack, could hear it above the sound of the ten radial engines on the enemy bombers.

The seconds dragged, and then we heard Johnny say, "Okay, I see 'em." And now we saw their exhausts, looking like ten bushel-baskets of blue fire. For a full second, as the enemy bombers moved towards the target that was our field, all was quiet, and I wondered if Johnny had lost them in the darkness. Then I saw him, so close to the enemy ships that he seemed to be in formation with them—and clearly over my radio I heard Johnny Alison say, "Watch the fireworks."

Six lines of tracers went into one of the bombers and glowed brighter than the two bushel-baskets of exhaust fire. The first Jap bomber trailed fire, slowly turned on its back, and spun crazily towards Hengyang, right over the town. Below, I could see a few flashes from the exploding enemy bombs, but most of them seemed short of the target area and very scattered. Johnny's tracers were still going into the enemy ships and I could see their return fire now, but it seemed to go in no certain direction. I had moved in closer, trying to get to the altitude of the fight.

On the ground the mechanics and the Chinese interpreters had a grandstand seat for one of the best moving pictures that has ever been—except that this was real. They too had heard Johnny say, "Watch the fireworks," and had seen and heard the heavy guns of the P-40. They could see pieces of the bomber coming off and going back into the slipstream, reflecting the glow of the fire that came with the explosion. Then the whole sky lighted as the first one plunged to the earth, with the fire making a queer sound as the wreckage fell.

The lone fighter now was sliding over behind the other bombers, and the second one was exploding and turning over. The third one tried to turn, seemed to hang for seconds against the full moon, then dove in flames in a pitch that got steeper and steeper. Several thousand feet below our level it exploded and burning gasoline fell with it. The light of the three burning bombers combined with the brilliant moonlight to make the night like day.

The number four enemy ship had turned back now, with an engine shot out, but Ajax Baumler got it ten miles North of the field. The last enemy dove out and turned for home when he saw his three leaders burn, but Baumler followed him thirty miles North and shot him down in flames.

From the ground, the watchers told us later, they could hear the fifty-calibre guns above the noise of the smaller calibre Jap guns. Within seconds after the attack, there were three ships burning around the city walls, and none of the formation got home. The Chinese people in the town had been watching the battle in awe. They had always had to just sit and take Jap bombings, especially night attacks, and this was something they had dreamed of. They were cheering now, and were out looking for enemy survivors with hoes, scythes, knives, and any weapon they could find to cut the Japanese to pieces, if any of them should escape.

But something was the matter with Alison. We could see his ship and it was not flying normally. Every now and then it would stream fire that was more than just a backfire. On the ground they could hear his engine missing badly.

Alison called in that he was hit, but would try to land his ship on the field.

To land a crippled fighter in daylight is quite a feat but to attempt to land one at night, one that has been shot to pieces and may burst into flames any second, is more than that. We knew why Johnny was taking the chance: we needed that ship if he could get it on the field, even if it was shot to bits we needed the parts that could be salvaged. It would have been perfectly all right if the pilot had gone over the side as soon as that engine began to fade out that night. Whether or not he had shot down three bombers, he could have "hit the silk" and floated to safety in his chute. But Johnny must have said, "The hell with that, we need this ship—we always need ships." To keep old P-40's that we flew in flying condition we had to rob parts from every airplane that we could salvage after a crackup. This is called "cannibalizing" in the lingo of field depots in the Air Corps, and covers a multitude of sins.

CHAPTER XVIII

So Johnny glided to the field with his missing engine, and then we heard him say that he couldn't make the field and was going to sit down in the river. The moon made it fairly bright, but even at that I knew that Johnny had to be mighty good and very lucky. Then I wondered whether or not he was wounded. Silhouetted against the light from the three bombers he had shot down, his fighter looked awfully low. He skimmed over the Chinese junks on the river, and I saw the splash as the P-40, with its wheels up, hit the Siang Kiang. Down on the ground they heard his engine give one more dying gasp, as with a surge of power—probably from full gun and a prop in low pitch—it lifted him over the last of the masts of the junks and let him level off to skid across the surface of the river.

We came in and landed now, for the ground crew had gotten the smudge-pot boundary lights set out to mark the runway as well as the bomb craters. We gathered together fast with the boys who had stayed on the ground, and talked about the great battle. I remember Tex Hill shaking his head and saying, "I'm afraid Johnny didn't make it. Dog-gone, he was a good boy." We all felt a sinking in our hearts. We waited and we kind of prayed too.

I sent Captain Wang, our salvage man, out to see if he could get any news of Major Alison. We made our reports out and kept waiting on the alert. Just when we had really given up hope, we heard the sound of sharp explosions. All of us ran out of the alert shack, to see the strangest sight that we ever saw, even in China.

A procession had entered the field. The Chinese sentry had passed the crowd of people and was himself holding his thumb in the air calling "Ding-hao—ding-hao." In the midst of the procession and surrounded by children shooting Chinese firecrackers in celebration, was a sedan chair carried on the backs of the villagers of Hengyang. And Johnny Alison was in the sedan chair—smiling.

While we cheered too and some of us even got some firecrackers from the kids and shot them off, we helped Johnny out and heard his story. He'd hit the river like a feather-bed, he said, and had swum ashore, having to kick off his good American shoes to make it. As he crawled up the bank of the river the Chinese had rushed upon him, thinking he was a Jap out of one of the bombers. Johnny said it looked as if they were going to cut him up, until he remembered the one word of Chinese that he'd picked up. He yelled this—one that sounded like "Merugay," which means "American." And when they read the Chinese sign that each of us carried on the back of his flying suit, which asks aid and protection for the American who has come to help China fight, they realized who he was. Just the man who had shot down the three enemy ships. And from then on he was the hero of the town.

Johnny Alison had a couple of burns on his hands and legs where some bits of the Japs' explosive bullets had hit him. He'd been slightly cut on the forehead when, on landing in the river, his head had hit the heavy metal of the gun-sight. But the scar that would leave would be a common one after the war, for every fighter pilot flies along with his head just inches behind that hunk of steel that contains the lights and prisms of the modern gun-sights. Just the slightest accident and it is out there to split your head.

I asked Johnny why in hell he went so close to the bomber formation, and he grinned and said, "I was scared I'd miss one of them."

Our salvage crew worked and worked at the job of raising the P-40 from the bottom of the Siang-Kiang. But with the fourteen-foot depth and the swift current, they had more than modern engineering with the limitations of our floating equipment could accomplish. Under Captain Wang—Chinese-American and in our Army—they floated barges out to the spot and tried to tow it ashore with lines. Then they lowered steel drums, tied them to the ship, tried to pump the water from the submerged drums and thus float the P-40—but everything failed.

During all the work of the Americans with windlass and block-and-tackle, the Chinese villagers, who had offered their services long before smiled and stood by. We asked ourselves: What in hell could the Chinese coolies and rivermen do if we, with our general knowledge and advanced civilization, couldn't raise the ship? We went on and failed for three days, and then to the persistent Chinese we said, "Okay, go ahead."

Himan Glaser, 27, copartner with his brothers, Elmer Glaser of Oceanside and Max Glaser, in the Elm's store here, returned home last week from Europe, where he had served with a tank division of the Army. He has been in the service for about 4½ years, the last 10 months of which has been in France, Belgium and Germany. The boat he came over the Atlantic on had 7500 on board, Himan reported. Both he and his brother, Max, who is still in Germany, serving with the Army of occupation, are graduates of San Diego high school.

Sgt. Francis G. Swan arrived home Tuesday evening from nearly two years of service overseas in the U. S. Army, and has started a 30-day furlough visit with his parents, Editor and Mrs. Frank F. Swan, 4493 Pescadero Ave. His last duty was with the Sixth Armored division near Frankfurt, Germany. He crossed the Atlantic on the Marshall Joffre, a French liner, and arrived Monday at the processing center for Southern California troops at Fort McArthur near Los Angeles. Following his furlough he will report back to Fort McArthur for shipment to Camp Shelby, Miss. as his next post of duty. He landed in New York on the big day of the Jap surrender.

Mrs. Faye Roosevelt Coming Home Soon

Mrs. Faye Roosevelt, the former Faye Emerson of Ocean Beach, plans to return from Hyde Park, N. Y. in September to her home in Beverly Hills, her mother, Mrs. Jean Young of 4405 Narragansett Ave., stated Friday. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the late president, recently retired from the Army as a brigadier general and is expected to join his wife in Beverly Hills. The couple, who were married last winter, are spending the summer at the Roosevelt Hyde Park home on the Hudson.

Mrs. Faye Roosevelt's son, William Wallace Crawford, who also spent the summer at the Hyde Park residence, has come back to San Diego and will stay the remainder of the summer at the home of his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Crawford, 1448 Dale St., and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Young of Ocean Beach.

BACK IN THE HORSELESS CARRIAGE DAYS

2 Circuits Were Ample!

BACK in the days when the horseless carriage first appeared, Ma and Pa planned a new home that would be up to the minute in every detail. In order that they would be able to use the new electric toasters and electric irons that they had heard so much about, they even had their house wired with two electric circuits. Two circuits, they said, would be more than enough for their needs in those days.

As the years went by, they acquired other appliances too. But two wiring circuits were never intended to furnish enough electricity for a waffle baker, radio, refrigerator, washing machine and a myriad of other appliances too! It is no wonder that today, the toast comes out blonde, that waffles are droopy or that the electric iron is slow to heat. Inconvenient? Yes . . . and it is expensive too . . . for inadequate wiring may often be the cause of high bills!

In your postwar home insist on sufficient circuits and sufficient electrical convenience outlets. Make extra room for tomorrow's new radio-phonograph combinations, home freezers and television sets. The slight, additional cost will repay itself many times over.

to see the whole damn bunch given a good pasting that they would never forget.

The Filipinos as a whole are fine people. They are friendly, loyal and generous and do all they can to make our soldiers feel at home. Financially they have been reduced to poverty and rags, but they have a tremendous pride and dignity and are industrious and so are rapidly recovering. Of course we are giving them all the help we can.

The people love to look neat and they have made very nice clothes and dresses out of our old clothes. You would be surprised how many pajamas have become women's dresses, and old shirts and trousers remodeled into dresses and suits. They can do wonders with a needle and thread. They can launder aprons like a million dollars.

In spite of the lack of materials they have designed modern and dignified looking clothes and present a very neat appearance.

Most of them speak English and are anxious to talk with us. Education is one of their strong points and they are crazy about books and magazines. For an Oriental nation they are almost completely Americanized in actions and thoughts.

The one bad thing at present is the black market but that is being broken. We really have inflation here but prices are already dropping and with each month more goods are coming in and prices will be back to normal in another year.

We still are in the process of building our hospital and that is a real job. Hope we will get to functioning soon. Had a little bad luck and had to spend 10 days in a hospital and I am still a little weak and getting treatment but hope to feel like myself again soon. Sure lost weight and I am down to 129 pounds now. My fever lasted five days and really took me down a couple of pegs.

Well that's about all I can think of. Give my regards to Lillian and Austin. When you go to Kiwanis tell all the boys I miss being with them and to keep on buying bonds so we can get this show over with soon.

As ever yours,
"Duke."

Doll House On View Until Next Tuesday

Colleen Moore's world-famous Doll House, which has thrilled thousands of San Diegans—adults and children—will close its engagement next Tuesday night.

Sponsored by the San Diego Junior Chamber of Commerce, with the Boys' club as beneficiary, "The most exquisite toy in the world" is being exhibited daily, 2 to 10 p. m., at the showrooms of the J. R. Townsend Co., at State and B Sts.

A miniature fairy castle, it is lavishly furnished with tiny but costly objects, many containing precious metals and gems in profusion. The hobby of Miss Moore dating from the days she reigned as a queen of the silent movies, the Doll House reputedly represents an investment of $435,000.

NINE FATEFUL DAYS——

When history books are written the nine days beginning with Monday, August 6, and ending with Tuesday, August 14, will be marked as probably the most dramatic and fateful in world history.

For months prior to this period the Japs had been staggering under the sledgehammer blows of American military might. Our superforts and smaller aircraft had been shooting up everything ni Hirohito's domain that they could bring under their guns and bombsights. Our vast naval armada under Admiral Halsey ranged at will along the enemy coastline and tossed giant missiles into shore installations and war plants. Everyone—including the Japs—knew that Japan was doomed.

But on Sunday, August 5, there was little reason to believe that the foe would be brought to his knees in less than six months or a year. Some observers thought the Nips could hang on even longer. Few persons thought victory could be won without a costly invasion of the enemy homeland.

Then on Monday, August 6, the most startling invention of all time was revealed—the atomic bomb. In one fell swoop more than half of Hiroshima disappeared. Russia's entry into the war the next day was overshadowed by the awe-inspiring report of the destructive force of the new weapon.

On Wednesday Nagasaki was "atomized." On Friday the Japs said they had had enough. Four days later World War II ended.

Thus, a single weapon—a deadly "dream" weapon—had compressed more dramatic history into nine brief days than the world might ordinarily experience in nine years. Even more important, the events of these nine days will project themselves into the indefinite future, for there is reason to believe that they mark the beginning of a new era in industrial development and of a lasting peace.

THE JAPS HAVEN'T CHANGED—

It would be well for all of us to bear in mind that the act of surrendering to the Allies has not changed the character or the aims of the Japs in any way.

They are still the same sneaky, treacherous lot they were the morning they blasted Pearl Harbor without warning. And there can be no doubt that they hope to survive this present setback so that at some later date they can make another try at world conquest. Even now they are laying the groundwork for this effort.

An official of the Japan Broadcasting Corporation told the enemy troops, "We have lost but this is temporary." It isn't going to be so temporary as the Japs seem to believe, but it could be if we are not alert to further trickery and treachery on the part of our beaten foe.

Emperor Hirohito himself helped the propaganda program by declaring in his speech to the Japanese people that in starting the war in 1941 it "was far from our thought either to infringe upon the sovereignty of other nations or to embark upon territorial aggrandizement."

Of course, no one outside of Japan is going to swallow such a deliberate lie, but the Japs—like the Germans immediately after their defeat—are trying to convince the world that they were fighting only in self defense. They know that if they can sell this idea to the other nations it will help pave the way for the next war of aggression 20, 50 or 100 years from now.

It is up to the Allies, and America in particular, to see to it that the Land of the Rising Sun never again gets the chance to build itself up as a major military power.

Our efforts in this direction will be much more effective if we recognize that we are dealing with the same people whose code of ethics justified, and still justifies, treachery, torture and bestiality.

Ocean Beach Camp & Hospital

The women of Mission and Ocean Beach certainly celebrated "Peace" Day. They baked 88 dozen cookies and six birthday cakes. What a wonderful time our hospitalized boys had celebratting. So many new boys and more coming. Don't ever forget them.

Please bring in your late reading matter—July and August. If you have a boy in the service you wouldn't want him to be handed an old magazine to read. Mostly our fliers in foreign lands are now grounded and they need late books and magazines. They are used to activity and it is hard on them to be inactive. Send in your late magazines and books.

Please do not bring old papers to the Center. Put them in the paper drive.

Our boys in the hospitals want book matches. You can buy a box of 58 or 60 for about 14 cents Please donate.

We have some wonderful workers on our Christmas tree decorations. Come up and see them and take some work home. It is clean, fascinating work. These decorations which go overseas must be ready by the last of August or early September. After they are on their way we must supply our hospitals here. We need all the workers we can get.

Don't forget wash cloths and of course you know every Wednesday is Cookie day. Remember our boys are coming home fast and expect cakes and cookies. The cookie jar is American.

County Federation Of Clubs Votes To Aid Music Talent

Annual summer conference of the San Diego County Federation of Women's clubs voted Friday at the Mission Beach Woman's clubhouse as its major project for the year to aid financially the brilliantly gifted young vocal student, Miss Maribeth Bristol, in continuing study at the Julliard school of music in New York.

Miss Bristol is a Hoover high school graduate and has already received high praise from teachers in musical circles in New York and locally.

Mrs. Ben B. Sturtevant, of National City, new county president, presided throughout the most interesting session and heard club presidents and county chairmen report on work already done and planned for the new year just opened.

Among those reporting was Mrs. C. W. Early, president of the Ocean Beach Woman's club who also is serving as second vice president of the County Federation. She reported the County Federation year book completed and announced the meeting places for the executive board and conventions.

The youth conservation program outlined by the General Federation of Women's clubs in Washington, D. C., was given high praise by the morning speaker of the session, Kenneth Beam. Many of the 40 clubs throughout the county will adopt the plan as a vitally needed post war project and will work directly with Mrs Lester L. Shaw, Pacific Beach appointee to the post of chairman of youth conservation for the county.

"If the future of our county depends on the quality of the young men of the United States today, the best days of this nation's honor, prosperity and greatness lie ahead," Chaplain R. D. Driscoll stressed in his talk, "The Navy Chaplains," at the afternoon session.

Touching on the evasiveness of the Japs in fulfilling peace ultimatums, he urged confidence in our leaders, "who know what they are doing."

Mrs. Sturtevant announced Oct. 17 as the date and Carlsbad the place for the county's fall convention.

Bank of America
VET-LOAN PLAN
Vet-loan Plan is a workable loan service for veterans.
While it embraces "G.I. Credit," it is not limited to loans that are government-guaranteed. In fact, it can serve a veteran who has already used his G.I. Credit, or who needs money for some purpose (such as working capital) for which government guaranty is not permitted. Further, it can speed up the granting of loans where quick action is important and there's no time to wait for eligibility to be established, or approval of the government guaranty for a loan to be secured.
So before you decide your plans are impossible, let's discuss the matter at the nearest branch of this statewide bank. Chances are good that a way of financing will be found, with or without the government guaranty, through Vet-loan Plan.
